Building Resilient Communities: Navigating Paths to Health Equity

Social Determinants of Health

Poverty as a social determinant of health

Community Action Poverty Simulation - The Poverty Simulation offers participants an immersive experience that sheds light on the social, emotional, and economic struggles faced by individuals living in poverty. By simulating the complexities of managing limited resources, participants gain valuable insights that can significantly impact their approach to patient care and client services.

“The goal of CAPS is to shift the paradigm about poverty away from being seen as a personal failure and toward the understanding of poverty as a structural failure of society.”

HEIA COMPLETE

Project Scoping

Using the latest state guidance as our compass, our assessors use a combination of primary data, secondary data, and independent research to paint a comprehensive picture of the client's service area.

Community Engagement

Our assessors meaningfully engage with community stakeholders including residents of the service area, community leaders, local departments of health, and others to gain their feedback.

Data-Driven Narrative

Thorough interpretation of secondary data and feedback from the meaningful engagement process our assessors determine how the project will impact health equity in the service area.
